

Lung Cancer is a serious disease with far too little money going toward public education, and research for a cure. Bo Johnson from Financial Independence Group was an inspiration to the annuity industry, so now it's time to show him our ongoing respect, and help raise money for the foundation near and dear to his heart!

Bo Johnson was a man known industry-wide for his energy, enthusiasm and love of the annuity industry. His life was cut much too short, after an arduous bout with Lung Cancer. In 2006, Bo and his wife, Christi, created Addi's Cure, a non-profit organization named after their daughter dedicated to cancer research and education.
